STONE BUILDING PREFERRED HERE

Postmaster Swope Makes Inquiry of Citizens Relative to Material
For New Postoffice.

COMMUNICATION FROM DIXON

Says if Local People Desire He Will
Ask for Another Appropriation of $15,000.

Postmaster Swope has received a communication from Congressman Lincoln Dixon who desires to know if the citizens of Seymour prefer stone or brick as the material to be used in the construction of the new postoffice building to be erected at the corner of Third and Chestnut streets. Congressman Dixon stated in his letter that an appropriation of $60,000 had been made for the local building but that amount would not be sufficient to erect a stone building. He said that if the people here preferred a stone structure he would urge congress to appropriate an additional $15,000.

The communication stated that the original appropriation of $60,000 would be sufficient to construct a building of brick with stone trimmings but would not be enough to build a stone structure. According to this letter it is understood that the plans have been completed and that they call for a brick building.

As soon as Postmaster Swope received the letter he started out with a paper and asked a number of citizens to designate which material they preferred. Stone was almost unanimously the choice of the citizens who were approached regarding the subject. The paper containing the signatures was sent to Congressman Dixon and it is probable that he will ask congress to make an additional appropriation. There seems to be no doubt but that the majority of Seymour people would rather have the postoffice building constructed of stone.

It was explained in Congressman Dixon's letter that if the majority of the people desired stone and it would be necessary to make the additional appropriation the actual work on the building might be delayed for a short time. It would probably necessitate the preparation of new plans and revised specifications. His letter did not state when the postoffice department intended to begin work on the building.

In accordance with the notice sent two weeks ago the arrangements are being made to raze the buildings and remove the obstructions on the postoffice site. Sixty days were given the owners in which to comply with the order and the ground will be clear by that time. City Engineer Douglass, who was awarded the contract for making the test pits on the site, has completed the work. He secured samples of the soil at various depths from two places on the lots and forwarded them to Washington. From these samples the engineers will estimate the bearing qualities of the soil and know how deep the foundations should be made.

LOCAL OFFICE TO REPORT IRREGULARITIES IN SERVICE

Postoffice Here Will Take Charge of Mail in Case Traction Car
Should Not Run.

Official notice from the department at Washington has been received by Postmaster Swope that the special mail service over the I. C. & S. Traction Line between this city and Indianapolis has been established and also requests that the local office report any irregularities of schedule. The department is watching this service closely and desires to know if the car fails to make the trip at any time and the cause of the failure, if any.

The instructions did not state that the local office was required to keep a check upon the number of sacks of mail that are sent over the traction line and only information as to the regularity of the service was asked. It is thought that in case the car does not run for any purpose the local office will be required to take charge of the mail after it reaches this city and see that it is dispatched as soon as possible. However, no trouble of this kind is anticipated unless there should be an accident at the power house or a break in the wires. The order contains nothing relative to sending mail from this city. No first class mail is sent by the traction route. The service was inaugurated after the discontinuance of the midnight trains on the Big Four and C. H. & D. Railroads between Cincinnati and Indianapolis. The mail is sent to Seymour over the early morning westbound B. & O. Southwestern train.

EXCAVATIONS TO BE MADE IN HOPE OF FINDING CLEW

Many Theories Are Still Advanced as How Bodies of Six Came to be Buried on Knoll.

No further excavations have been made at the country home of William Olinger, five miles north of the city, where the six skeletons were unearthed last Friday. It is the intention of J. J. Peter, one of the owners of the farm, to have the investigation continued at an early date. The bones were unearthed while a basement was being dug and the workmen are interested in making a further examination. Many are of the opinion that other skeletons will be found.

There is still much speculation as to how the bones came to be there. Some hold to their first opinion that the knoll was at one time a grave yard or private burying ground of one of the early pioneer families and the fact has been forgotten by the later generations. Others doubt this theory and ask how the coin of the date of 1854 could have been in the grave. They say it is hardly possible that the coin would have dropped in that particular place.

The most prevalent belief here is that the bodies were placed there by some members of the notorious gang of outlaws who operated in this section of the state in the 60's. Nothing definite can be learned, however, and it is hoped that some clew may be found when the next excavations are made.

SAFETY MEETING HELD AT COLUMBUS

Employees of I. C. & S. Traction
Company Meet There For Conference This Afternoon.

ORGANIZATION IS COMPLETED

Purpose of Movement is to Emphasize Importance of Exercising
Care in Handling of Cars.

Local employees of the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern Traction Company went to Columbus this afternoon to attend a meeting which was called for the purpose of completing a safety first organization. The movement has been under consideration for some time and several months ago it was proposed that an organization be formed but the plan was not carried out. The officials have stated that the new organization will be in charge of the employees as far as possible.

Two meetings were held at Greenwood Monday. One was called in the afternoon for the employees who work at night and another was held at 7 o'clock for those who work during the day. Both were well attended. Two meetings are also called at Columbus. One for this afternoon and one for tonight. Another will be held at Greenwood Wednesday afternoon for the accommodation of the shop employees.

The safety first movement has grown in popularity in Indiana and organizations have been formed on many of the steam and traction roads. The purpose of the movement is to impress the employees with the duty they owe to themselves, to the passengers in their charge and to the company to exercise the greatest precaution in the operation of cars and while engaged in work at the yards and on the road.

One object of the organization is to give the employees an opportunity to give their views and ideas relative to the safe operation of cars. It has been explained to them that while the officials can manage the cars and prepare the schedule the employees are in a far better position to make suggestions as to many details which effect the operation of the cars and which might be overlooked by the chief officials. The employees are on the road each day and frequently suggestions are made which are adopted by the company and proves to be of great benefit as a safety measure.

Regular meetings will be held by the organization at different points along the line. The employees are urged to attend these meetings when addresses will be made by officials and others who have given the movement their particular attention. These meetings will be held every sixty or ninety days. The employees will select delegates and an organization meeting will be called in June when the officers will be named.

Employees of the Louisville & Northern Traction Line, running from Sellersburg to Louisville, have a safety first organization and the plan has been discussed for some time by employees on the I. & L. between this city and Sellersburg. It is probable that if this road forms an organization the employees will hold joint conferences at various times during the year.

ORGANIZATION OF BOARD OF INQUIRY

New Plan Inaugurated on B. & O.
System for Investigation of Train Accidents.

IMPARTIAL REPORT IS AIM

Commission, Consisting of Three Division
Officials, Will Determine
Cause of Wrecks.

A new method of investigating wrecks on the B. & O. Railroad system has been inaugurated by J. M. Davis, general superintendent, and is in use on the Indiana division. Instead of allowing the responsibility of the investigations to rest with one official a board of inquiry has been organized and is composed of three division officers. The board is composed of the superintendent, assistant superintendent or trainmaster, division engineer or his assistant and the master mechanic or road foreman of engines. The new plan became effective a short time ago and has been used in investigating several accidents that have occurred on the Southwestern.

The wrecks that come under the investigation of the newly organized board are those of passenger trains, of all trains that result in personal injury and of freight trains where the damages exceeds $250. The purpose of the new plan is to give all parties concerned a fair hearing so that the actual origin of the accident might be officially determined. It is thought that the new plan will be more satisfactory to the company and also to the employees and that fewer appeals will be taken to the general offices. Under the rules governing the inquiry board the ranking officer writes the report and the other two members may concur in his statement or they may file reports showing their opinions.

The rules which have been issued by General Manager Davis are as follows:

A Board of Inquiry, consisting of three division officers, shall convene at once to determine the cause of every collision, road or yard; of every derailment of passenger trains; of each derailment of freight trains, including transfer and yard engines, which involves a property damage of $250.00 or over; of each collision with a vehicle which involves loss of life or serious injury, and of each case of serious personal injury to employees in the train or yard service.

The Board of Inquiry shall consist of either the superintendent, assistant superintendent or trainmaster, the division engineer or assistant division engineer, the master mechanic or the road foreman of engines. The superintendent will indicate the members of the Board whenever an accident occurs in order to divide the work so that it will not all devolve upon any three particular men.

This board shall make personal investigations on the ground if necessary and take testimony of employees, eye-witnesses or other parties, so as to include all evidence afforded by physical condition of the place of accident.

Should a Division Board fail to reach a definite and satisfactory conclusion, or if two members thereof do not concur in the findings, a second Board of Inquiry, consisting of the general superintendent, superintendent of motive power and the district engineer maintenance of way shall be convened forthwith.

Every accident has an originating cause. Board of Inquiry shall determine cause, both immediate and remote, and fix responsibility regardless of individuals affected (officers or employees.)

In case of personal responsibility, it shall be definitely fixed by name and occupation or title in plain statement of the fact. Defective equipment, appliances, structures or track contributing to an accident should be specifically described, with character and nature or cause of defect. If defect in manufacture, the name of manufacturer and identifying data should be given.

The findings of Boards of Inquiry should be reduced to writing, signed by each member of the Board concurring, with findings also of members, if any, not concurring. The superintendent will promptly mail the general superintendent one copy and the general manager two copies of the report (in case of serious personal injury or death, one copy to the general claim agent), the regular telegraphic reports of accidents to be sent in as soon after the accident as possible.

The ranking officer present will act as Chairman of the Board of Inquiry and will be responsible for compliance with these instructions. It shall be his duty to read this circular to the Board as the first business when the Board convenes. In the event the officers holding the investigation are coordinate, the superintendent will designate the one to act as chairman.

NEW CURRENCY SYSTEM TO BE IN OPERATION SHORTLY

Federal Reserve Bank Organization
Committee Pushing Plans Completion.

Washington, April 6.—Every effort will be exerted by the Federal reserve bank organization committee to have all banks expedite the formal steps yet necessary to put the new currency system in operation.

Members of the committee apparently have no expectation that there will be any financial crisis to face requiring the assistance to banks which the reserve system will have, but they are particularly anxious to have the twelve reserve banks in the field when crop moving time comes around next fall.

They hope to be able at that time to demonstrate how easily and quickly the reserve system will take care of a situation which in previous years has caused financial worry, and which last fall led to direct loans from the United States treasury to national banks in the farming regions.

Under the law the several steps to be taken by the institution might be delayed so that there would be little chance of setting the reserve banks up before autumn, but if the banks respond promptly there is little reason to believe that the organization will be deferred longer than a few months.

The committee has worked at full speed on its part of the preliminary work, and tomorrow the formal notice will be sent to the 7,548 institutions which ask entrance to the system, of the location of reserve banks and the limits of reserve districts.

With the notices will go blanks on (Continued on page 8, column 1.)

MAYOR OF MARION RETURNS TO G. O. P.

James O. Batchelor, Leader of Progressive Party in 1912, is Again a Republican.

SAYS WRONGS ARE RIGHTED

Declares Principles Vital to Welfare of Nation Are at Stake and Urges Reunion.

Marion, Ind., April 7.—James O. Batchelor, mayor of this city, a Progressive party leader in 1912 and nominated by the Progressives and elected mayor of this city last fall, today issued a statement that he has abandoned the Progressive party and returned to the Republican party. He says he has taken this step because the abuses within the Republican party against which there was revolt in 1912 have been corrected, and that principles vital to the welfare of the nation are now at stake which can only be preserved by the reunion of all former Republicans in the party of Lincoln.

Mayor Batchelor outlines the fundamental differences between the Republican and Democratic parties. He says he supported Roosevelt in 1912, like many other Progressives, not because of the Columbus speech, but in spite of it. He declares the proposals of innovation in the spirit and substance of government in Roosevelt's Columbus address are incompatible with efficient popular government.

Mr. Batchelor is the mayor of one of the largest cities in Indiana that elected a Progressive mayor, and this makes his announcement all the more important, because it is regarded as showing the trend of Progressives over the state.

Mayor Batchelor says that he was chosen mayor of his home city, not as a partisan, but on his platform of law enforcement, and that he made this plain during his campaign and after his election. With Batchelor as mayor a Republican candidate for city clerk was elected.

Mayor Batchelor was, at the time of his election, a traveling man for a paper and publishing house. Prior to that he was a public school principal. For two years he taught in the Philippine Islands. He has been recognized as one of the ablest leaders of the Progressive party in northern Indiana, and his cogent, common sense statement of his present position will undoubtedly exert a wide influence.

CONTENTION OVER HOME RULE BILL

Measure Passes Again On Its Second Reading.

MAJORITY WAS REDUCED TO 80

Dwindling Government Majority, the Last Vote Having Shown Strength of Government Coalition to Be 98, Was Accounted For by Studious Abstinence of O'Brienites From Voting on the Measure.

London, April 7.—The home rule bill passed its second reading in the house of commons last night for the third time in the life of the present parliament. The division was on party lines and the vote was 356 to 276, a majority of 80 for the measure. The majority was 101 when it was passed in 1912 and 98 when it went through the house of commons in 1913. The normal majority of the government coalition is 98. The reduction to 80 last night was mainly due to the fact that William O'Brien and his Irish followers refrained from voting, which drew cheers from the opposition.

At the evening session Timothy Healy, Nationalist member for north-east Cork, made a bitter jibbing speech at the expense of John Redmond and his followers, whom he accused of mishandling the Ulster question. Among other things he taunted the Devlins (Joseph Devlin is an Irish Nationalist member for Belfast) with being the hereditary horse boys of the O'Neills. There was much personal bickering between the followers of John Redmond and William O'Brien. Several speakers pleaded for a settlement of the home rule question by consent.

"I think in the present circumstances there is nothing for the house of commons to do but proceed with the home rule for Ireland bill as it stands." This was the closing sentence of a speech delivered by John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, who made the final speech on behalf of the Nationalist party. "The country, as a whole, is sick and tired of the Irish question," he continued, "and it must be settled here and now." The opposition severely criticised the absence of Sir Edward Grey, who was nominally in charge of the bill during the absence of Premier Asquith. Lord Robert Cecil said it was an insult to the house. Bonar Law, leader of the Unionists, said it was neither fair nor respectful. It was the general understanding that Sir Edward had gone fishing in Scotland.

Mr. Bonar Law then made this offer: If the government would submit the bill at a general election and the country approved it the house of lords would pass it without amendment without delay and without depriving the government of any of its privileges under the parliament act. Mr. Law said the Marquis of Lansdowne, leader of the opposition in the house of lords, had authorized him to say this.

Referring to the talk of a possible renewal of the conversation between the rival parties, Mr. Law said that if such a proposal was made the opposition would accept, "but," he added, "what is the use of conversation when

Made Well By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headaches, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, restless feelings and sleeplessness. "I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I threw away the medicines the doctor left me and began taking the Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Your medicine has proved itself able to do all you say it will and I have recommended it in every household I have visited."—Mrs. MARY JOHNSTON, 210 Siegel Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Bad Case. Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysterical spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was so weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes. "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and happy and I have begun to gain in weight and my face looks healthy now."—Mrs. J. W. HORNBERGER, R. No. 3, Ephrata, Pa. Mr. Redmond vetoes any proposals. Mr. Law said that if the government would themselves accept the responsibility of eliminating Mr. Redmond the difficulties would disappear and a settlement would come.

Mr. Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, closed the debate for the government in a conciliatory speech. He contended that considerable progress toward a settlement had been already made and if both sides put their heads together a solution could be had.

NEWCASTLE MAYOR FAVORS WOMAN ON SCHOOL BOARD

Council Has Not Expressed Opinion Regarding Suggestion of Governor Ralston.

Newcastle, Ind., April 7.—Following the suggestion of Governor Ralston here that each city would do well to have a woman on the school board, Mayor Watkins has come out with a statement in which he favors such a departure. It is believed that no city in the state as small as Newcastle has a woman on the school board.

The term of Floyd W. Stout will expire in June. As yet none of the city council, which has sole power in making the choice, has stated what its opinion is in this matter. It is believed that there are many women in the city who would be glad to serve.

Physicians attending him refused to permit anyone to see him. Efforts of the police to learn the identity of Spurgeon's assailants were unsuccessful. Spurgeon's captors took the preacher in an automobile to a spot about twenty-four miles north of Denver, where he was beaten and released. Spurgeon succeeded in reaching the house of Deputy Sheriff George W. Rucker of Adams county, who brought him to the hospital. Spurgeon's nose was broken and he suffered other injuries.

Indiana Miners Pass Formal Resolutions.

BESPEAK HELP FOR COLORADO

The Mine Operators in That State, Indiana Miners Declare, "Have Violated Every Law on the Statute Books Pertaining to Mines and Mining." The Miners, They Further Declare, Being Deprived of Proper Protection.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 7.—Representing 21,000 coal miners of southern Indiana, delegates in convention here adopted a resolution calling upon President Wilson and congress to "uphold the constitution of the United States" in behalf of the striking miners of Colorado. The resolution declares that the mine operators in that state "have violated every law on the statute books pertaining to mines and mining"; characterizes the governor of Colorado as "spineless" and either powerless or disinclined "to furnish the miners with protection, and asserts that "the corrupt state militia, composed partly of Baldwins, thugs and assassins, have trampled upon both the constitutions of the United States and Colorado by the arrest of 'Mother' Jones and keeping her in solitary confinement and also by destroying the tent towns of the miners."

The convention, composed of delegates from District No. 11 of the United Mine Workers, met to receive the report of its scale committee on an agreement to be submitted to the operators on Thursday for a new wage scale. This report was not reached owing to "spirited debate over the question of remaining at work while negotiations with the operators are in progress.

Delegates from the Linton district protested against so doing, holding that by compelling a shutdown they would be better able to enforce their demands. Their motion to this effect was tabled by a vote of 82 to 32. The Linton delegates and those from the Clinton district indicated they would register a further protest by negative votes at the general referendum, which is to be taken April 14 as to whether the recommendations of the policy committee of the United Mine Workers' international organization, advising against a strike, should be upheld.

A DANGEROUS COMBINATION

Boys and Guns Get Together With Deadly Effect.

Petersburg, Ind., April 7.—Argil, aged eight, while playing with his elder brother, Gus Nolan, aged sixteen, both sons of George Nolan, living ten miles south of here, accidentally killed the latter in a scuffle over a revolver. The younger brother had found the revolver in a dresser drawer, had taken it out and was playing bandit. He pointed the revolver at the older boy, who grabbed for it, and in the scuffle was shot.

Anderson, Ind.—Though a bullet is lodged near his heart, physicians think there is a chance for the recovery of Walter Stroud, aged nineteen, who was accidentally shot by his brother, Earl Stroud, aged seventeen, when the Stroud brothers and several companions were having target practice with a revolver.

Galena, Ind.—Joseph C. Enoch, sixteen years old, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a pistol in the hands of Herbert Thomas, also sixteen years old, a companion.

Delinquents Given Credit.

Richmond, Ind., April 7.—Twenty or more men who served on election boards in the recent local option election in Richmond, received tax receipts in payment for their services. The county treasurer, before issuing warrants to election board members, went over the delinquent list and in cases where election officers had failed to meet the obligations of citizenship, he turned the pay into the treasury, giving credit to the delinquents.

Death of Mrs. Lane.
Crawfordsville, Ind., April 7.—Mrs. Joanna Elston Lane, aged eighty-seven, widow of Colonel Henry S. Lane, former governor of Indiana and United States senator from this state, is dead at her home here.

LAPORTE COUNTY HEARS OF MANY GUNNESS CLEWS

Commissioners Will Appropriate No More Money for Investigations.

LaPorte, Ind., April 7.—Having run to earth another false clue which purported to have found Belle Guinness, the "mistress of murder hill," LaPorte has settled down again to wait for another. This city rivals Newcastle, with its Catherine Winters mystery. Both mysterious disappearances have had Indiana by the ears for some time. The next clue is expected to have it that Mrs. Guinness has kidnapped the Winters child.

Having stalked a dwelling near Neville, Sask., for a fortnight, the mounted police had convinced themselves that they had found the Indiana murderess. They were assisted by sensational news reports and finally worked up enough excitement to persuade the county commissioners of this county that the matter should be investigated. Money was appropriated for the trip of a constable, Clint Cochrane.

Cochrane, who knew Mrs. Guinness, was accompanied by newspapermen, constables, police and a bunch of other safeguards. They crept up on the house like the sleuths they were, expecting to find Mrs. Bluebeard. In her stead they found a motherly old lady who invited them in and made them quite at home.

The anti-climax made the whole affair ludicrous—so much so that when Samuel A. Lambert, county commissioner here, heard of it, he put his big foot down and said that no more of the county's money should be spent chasing down false Guinness clues.

Mrs. Guinness may now live at peace, if she lives at all. Nothing short of a visit to her home town or a few more murders will convince the skeptical commissioners that she was not burned in the fire that destroyed her house. That is the belief of a good many here, anyway.

Look to Your Plumbing.

You know what happens in a house in which the plumbing is in poor condition—everybody in the house is liable to contract typhoid or some other fever. The digestive organs perform the same functions in the human body as the plumbing does for the house, and they should be kept in first class condition all the time. If you have any trouble with your digestion take Chamberlain's tablets and you are certain to get quick relief. For sale by all dealers.

Home Garden Contests.

Spokane, Wash., April 7.—Seven thousand school children of Spokane will participate in a city-wide home garden contest to be conducted this spring and summer by the chamber of commerce and Y. M. C. A. Last year's contest, in which 3,500 children raised garden stuff valued at $15,000, will be doubled in size this year, and the board of education will hire an expert agriculturist to direct the work of the amateur farmers.

Instead of one large central fair in the autumn, as last year, there will be a series of "spring fairs," one in each of the 30 city school districts, the week after school closes in June, and the winners at these will take their exhibits to a central place the next day for the final contest. In the fall the pupils who wish to enter in the Spokane Interstate fair for prizes offered on garden products will take their exhibits individually to the fair. Competition in the "spring fairs" will be open to pupils in all schools from the fourth to the eighth grade. High school pupils will be eligible to compete at the interstate fair.

"A majority of prizes this year will be offered on vegetables, the rest going to flowers to encourage thrift," states R. R. Rogers, chairman of the committee in charge of this contest. "The school board is endeavoring to work out a plan so that school credits may be given for the work done by the pupils in their gardens.

"As a result of this contest not only are the children kept busy and off the streets during their spare hours, but they are interested in healthful work that should lay the foundation for many useful lives. This work also sets an example in thrift and industry, which, if generally followed would forever banish the high cost of living."

Found a Cure for Rheumatism.

"I suffered with rheumatism for two years and I could not get my right hand to my mouth for that length of time," writes Lee L. Chapman, Mapleton, Iowa. "I suffered terrible pain so I could not sleep or lie still at night. Five years ago I began using Chamberlain's Liniment and in two months I was well and have not suffered with rheumatism since." TORTURED BY STOMACH ILLS, HE FINDS MAYR REMEDY IN TIME

Frankfort Man Ends His Troubles With First Dose of Treatment.

Walter Spray, of 1011 South Second Street, Frankfort, Ind., for a long time suffered from disorders of the stomach which caused him great pain.

After long and tedious efforts to find relief he at last tried Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. The results, pleasing and beneficial, came right away. In telling of his experience he wrote:

"I took your treatment and will truly say that it did me more good than all the doctors did for me for months. Before I took your medicine I suffered a great deal, but since I took the first dose I have not had a bad spell. I feel that it is even more than you claim."

Letters like that come from all parts of the country. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is known everywhere because of its true merit. The first dose proves—no long treatment.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions and removes poisonous matter. It brings swift relief to sufferers from ailments of the stomach, liver and bowels. Many declare it has saved them from dangerous operations and many are sure it has saved their lives.

Because of the remarkable success of this remedy there are many imitators, so be cautious. Be sure it's MAYR'S. Go to C. E. Loertz' drug store and ask about the wonderful results it has been accomplishing—or send to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 154-156 Whiting St., Chicago, Ill., for free book on stomach ailments and many grateful letters from people who have been restored. Any druggist can tell you its wonderful effects.

SIDE LIGHTS ON RULERS AS HOSTS

A Most Remarkable Meeting With the Bulgars' Czar.

FINE TRIBUTE TO AMERICA.

Graceful Hospitality of Ferdinand Charmed Visitors From United States—Held Imperial Train For Guests, Went to Station With Them, Sultan's Fete in Veritable Fairyland.

Colvin B. Brown, chief of the department of exploitation of the Panama-Pacific exposition, and Walter P. Andrews and Thomas Rees, commissioners of that department, have returned from their four months' trip abroad with some interesting impressions of European monarchs. In an interview in the New York Times Mr. Brown describes Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria as a host.

"We were invited to the palace for an audience at 9 o'clock in the evening," said Mr. Brown. "Naturally we thought it would be a formal affair, lasting about a quarter of an hour. Czar Ferdinand received us standing. At the end of twenty minutes he escorted us into the main audience chamber and introduced us to the queen, to the crown prince, to the latter's brother, to the two princes and to the entire court.

"On a big table was spread a map of the Panama canal, with photographs of the Gatun dam and the big locks, and there was piled every piece of literature that has been issued about the San Francisco exposition. The members of the imperial family and the court crowded about the table and kept us talking canal and exposition for two and a half solid hours. It was midnight when he left the palace.

"Arriving at our hotel, we found an invitation from the prime minister to attend a dinner the following evening given by the czar's cabinet.

"After that we had an invitation from the czar to lunch with him on the following day at one of his suburban palaces.

"At luncheon the czar sat at the head of the table. Mr. Andrews was on his right and I on his left. The crown prince was on my left. Only the czar's immediate family were at the table. And, do you know, they had for luncheon American trout, American deer and American wild turkey.

Czar Held Train For His Guests.
"The meal lasted longer than I had thought it would, and as the time passed I was sure the Orient express had whizzed by and we were left. But it wasn't up to me to say anything. It was not until 2 o'clock that the czar arose from the table. We put on our overcoats and hats, and he did the same, and he got into the automobile with us, and we drove over a mile and a half to the czar's private railway station.

"It is a one story building of beautiful design. As we approached soldiers threw open double doors, and we drove right in upon a plush carpet and found ourselves in a beautiful drawing room, fitted with couches and chairs and pictures. From the drawing room we stepped out upon a platform on the other side, which was carpeted its full length. Fifty yards below on a siding was the Orient express. It had been waiting these forty minutes by the czar's order.

"Czar Ferdinand raised his hand, and the engine pulled the train in upon the main track. When the engine was opposite us the czar raised his hand again and commanded the engineer to stop. Then he said to us:

"This is the imperial engine. It has a record of 100 kilometers an hour. Never before has it been attached to a public train, and it has never pulled any but royal carriages. You have afforded me great pleasure and entertainment. You are busy men, and I do not desire that the pleasure you have given me shall result in the loss of valuable time to you. The engineer has been ordered to make up lost time between here and the Bulgarian border."

An Arabian Nights Feast.
The Americans on their visit to Constantinople were treated by the sultan of Turkey to what Mr. Brown describes as an Arabian Nights feast. He says:

"In Constantinople we met the sultan and the grand vizier and every member of the cabinet. A most elaborate luncheon was given to us in the bazaar district and a very elaborate dinner by the ministry. The latter was a wonderful occasion—made me think I had been rubbing an Aladdin's lamp. "A room had been decorated with furnishings from the dining room of one of the richest shahs of Persia, and a magnificent rug hung as a canopy over the table, while others decorated the walls or were spread on the floor. Rich candelabra lighted the table, and we were entertained during the feast, which lasted four hours, by Turkish jugglers and musicians. Prizes were given for guesses as to what the dishes were.

"In Roumania we met the king and the queen, Carmen Sylva. It was rather an informal visit we had with the queen, and she asked many questions about American affairs.

"In Spain we met King Alfonso. He reminded us of a young Wall street business man by his alert manner and his modish dress."

CANCER A DISEASE OF CIVILIZATION?

Experts Differ on Question and on Value of Radium.

OVERDOSE KILLED BREMNER?

Cornell Professor of Pathology Thinks So, but Believes in Efficacy of the Mineral—Statistician Declares Those Reported Cured by It Never Really Had Dread Disease.

Speakers who appeared before the American Society For the Control of Cancer in New York differed widely as to the prevalence of the disease and also as to the efficacy of radium treatment for it. The meeting was called to start a movement to acquaint the public with the dangers of cancer and especially with the danger of allowing small cancerous growths to become malignant and deep seated before applying for operations.

Frederick L. Hoffman, statistician, who has made a specialty of collecting information about cancer, asserted that 75,000 adult persons died from the disease last year in the United States alone, while 500,000 persons died from it in civilized countries. He said that cancer was essentially a disease of civilization and was practically unknown among primitive people and savage tribes.

Dr. James Ewing, professor of pathology of the Cornell university medical school, disputed Mr. Hoffman's assertion. He said that cancer was not only prevalent throughout the whole human race, but that, far from being a disease of civilization, it was prevalent in practically all lower animals and was even found among trout and codfish, which died from it in great numbers.

Disputes Cures With Radium.
In discussing radium cures for cancer Mr. Hoffman said that a careful study of hundreds of reported cures had convinced him that the patients affected were really not suffering from cancer. He denied that any cure had been effected by any means other than the surgeon's knife.

With this Dr. Ewing, disagreed also. He said that cancerous growths had been cured by radium when they were local and when they had been treated before the poisonous toxins from the growth had spread through the whole body. The limit of radium treatment, he said, was confined to a depth of an inch and a half or two inches, as that was the extent of the penetrating power of radium rays beneath the skin. He said that new ways were constantly being discovered to apply radium so that its curative power would be extended to even the most malignant forms of the disease.

In response to questions asked him after he had concluded his address Dr. Ewing expressed the opinion that a very large overdose of radium had been administered to Representative S. Bremner of New Jersey and that Mr. Bremner's death was no doubt hastened by this too extensive application. He pointed out that the correct dosage for radium had not been determined definitely and that much experimenting must be done in this direction.

"The deaths from this disease," said Mr. Hoffman, "have practically doubled in the last forty years. The death rate increases at the rate of 5 per cent every decade. Statistics which I have gathered concerning the disease prove that no doctor operating for cancer was ever infected by it and that no person ever inherited it or passed it as an infection to any other person.

"Cancerous cells are treacherous for the reason that they have no nerve stimulation connected with them. You do not feel any pain as a cancerous growth starts and so gain no warning. The rich are afflicted more than the poor. All persons are liable to be attacked after they reach maturity. Most often the disease appears after the victim has reached an age of forty years or more.

"In England they eat five or six meals a day and so constantly irritate the stomach. It may be that this has something to do with starting cancerous growths, as English people suffer heavily.

Urges Study of Localities.
"In Madison county, N. Y., cancer has attained the highest level in the United States as a cause of deaths. We do not know why this is so, but I wish some special study could be undertaken to find out. There are other small localities where the number of cancer patients is especially large. Study of these localities might give us much more light than seeking in laboratories to find the germ that causes it or whatever the source of the disease may be. As a matter of fact, all we know about it is that some cells break loose in lawless fashion and have a peculiar power to attract to themselves all the nourishment taken into the body.

"We need to do away with this word 'cancer,'" he said, "and bring into use in its stead a number of expressions that will rightfully describe the various kinds of growths that occur among rebellious cells. As a matter of fact, the growths are very different in character, and we know so little about them that I do not hesitate to say that our cancer problem is the first problem in importance before the medical profession."

WHY CAPT. SCOTT LOST HIS LIFE

Commander Evans Gives New Facts For First Time.

OIL SHORTAGE WAS TRAGIC.

Antarctic Explorer's Companion Says Their Leader Would Have Had to Suffer Amputation of His Legs Even Had He Been Able to Reach One Ton Camp, the Base of Supplies.

"Commander E. R. G. R. Evans of the royal navy, second in command of the Scott expedition to the antarctic and the last member of the supporting party to see Captain Scott alive, has made public some details of the expedition which have not been mentioned in his lectures or written accounts. These are given in the New York Post.

Even had Captain Scott succeeded in reaching One Ton camp, the base of supplies, it would have been necessary to amputate both his legs, said Commander Evans. The fate of the expedition, according to the commander, was to some extent due to unaccountable shortage of oil supply—"paraffin" the explorers call it—at the supply depots on the return march.

Petty Officer Evans, one of the five men on the final dash of 150 miles, was terribly cut up over the party's failure to beat Amundsen to the pole. Evans died first, according to the commander's theory, because he was the heaviest man of the lot. He weighed about 200 pounds, but he got the same rations as Lieutenant Bowers, who tipped the scales at 120 pounds.

Disaster Due to Lack of Oil.

"If the men could have had more hot food and liquid," said Commander Evans, "they could have kept their limbs from being frozen. The shortage of paraffin oil was tragic. But for that I believe the men would have kept up hope of fetching through. But it was simply a question of hot fuel and energy, without which the human engine can't fight against cold and fatigue. As it was, the condition of Captain Scott's legs would have called for amputation, even if he could have fought through to One Ton camp. That was eleven miles from the spot where the bodies were found eight months later.

"Of course the atrocious weather was a factor that no man could fight against. Never was an expedition better equipped or more thoughtfully planned. And yet there seems, unaccountably, to have been too little allowance of oil for bad weather, let alone the blizzards Captain Scott's band marched through. It was a fine weather supply at many posts. The oil which we use in the wickless paraffin stoves for making tea and 'boosh' must have leaked through the stoppers. In many instances two gallons had dwindled to a gallon and two-thirds."

Commander Evans and H. R. Mather of the Royal navy volunteer reserve, one of the ship's party on the Terra Nova, told many intimate details of the character of E. G. Oates—"Soldier" or "Titus," they used to call him.

Captain Oates was the man who walked out of the tent on March 17 when he felt that he was keeping the others back and said as he stepped outside and may be gone some time."

"That was always Oates' theory," said Mather. "When they were discussing plans at the Cape Evans base during the winter of 1911 'Soldier' Oates always contended that the party should not stick with a dying man. It was his belief that when a man's traces got loose he ought to take himself out of the way.

A Wonder That Evans Escaped.

"Each of the three supporting parties reported shortage of oil," said Mather. "Dr. Atkinson, Commander Evans, who only had two men with him, and Cecil Meares, in charge of the transports and animals, all told the same story. Each supporting party that picked up the depots on the return trip was supposed to use its share of the oil cones, but Meares gave up his share and traveled on two meals a day.

"It was a combination of great luck and determination that brought Commander Evans home alive. He started by going right through blizzards, working with the floor cloth of his tent put up as a sail. Two days' march south of the Beardmore glacier he ran into a blizzard which lasted for three days. Instead of stopping until the party could see the tracks Evans decided to go ahead. He got the direction of the gale and steered a general course by exposing his right cheek and telling the feel of the wind. They got somewhat out of direction and in consequence had to toboggan down Shackleton ice falls to get back to the upper glacier depot. As it turned out, this move probably saved his life, which he later nearly lost through scurvy."

MANY FROCKS AND SUITS OF GEBARDINE AND SERGE NOTED AMONG THE NEW MODELS.

In the recent Parisian openings, many of the tailored suits and dresses were made of gebardine or serge; dark blue seems as always, to be the favored color. These materials, however, are seldom if ever used alone; they are combined with satin, Roman striped or plaid taffeta. The suit shows in nearly every instance, a vest of plaid or figured silk; the draped Japanese collar is noted on both dresses and suits. The sash of plaid or figured silk also plays an important part.

Illustrated here are two costumes, suitable for street and afternoon functions; No. 8189 is developed in a dark blue serge with vest, draped collar and narrow cuffs of taffeta in a dark, rich green. The skirt, which is a two-piece model, shows an unusual and attractive panel effect.

This dress may be made in size 36, with 4 yards of double width serge and 1 1/4 yards of 36 inch taffetas. This mannish serge may be purchased from 75 cents a yard and up.

No. 8175 shows one of the modish, bolero-like coats with an unusual vest extending into gathered ends below the girdle; the skirt is in three tier effect.

This suit, 8175-8177, may be copied in size 36, with 2 1/4 yards of 42 inch material for the coat, and 4 1/4 yards of 42 inch material for the skirt.
No. 8189—sizes 34 to 44.
No. 8177—sizes 22 to 32.
No. 8175—sizes 32 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

These patterns for sale by the Racket Store. L. F. Miller.

Self-Constituted Head of Constitutional Cause in Northern Mexico Declares That All Foreigners Will Be Given Every Legal Guarantee, but That Foreign Countries Must Make Grievances Known to Him.

Mexico City, April 7.—The government still persists in its denial that Torreón has fallen and the officials of the National railways say their advice from El Paso do not confirm the reported capture of that place by General Villa. Secretary of the Interior Alcocer says he has received a telegram stating that Generals De Mouri and Maas were just entering Torreón.

Vera Cruz, April 7.—Rebels under Pablo Gonzales have succeeded in taking Escuela Monte and Dona Cecilia, three kilometers out from Tampico and they have mounted two heavy guns commanding the harbor. They hold the railroad communication and are now in position to starve out the defenders of the city.

El Paso, April 7.—Venustiano Carranza has given an answer to the request of Senator Morris Shepherd for a statement relative to the position of Constitutionalists regarding foreigners. The statement promises that all foreigners will be given every guarantee in the matter of trials for alleged offenses and reiterates quite plainly Carranza's assertion at Nogales recently that foreign countries must take up with his government their own grievances or at least recognize his government to the extent of notifying him that they have authorized the United States to act for them.

The statement further asserts that the rebel armies will observe the conventionalities of war, by which it is inferred that prisoners will be humanely treated and the wounded properly cared for. Carranza is said to have notified all generals that this course must be followed if the Constitutionalists expected ever to receive recognition from the United States or other nations, and the generals are said to have agreed. This explains, it is said, why Villa killed no prisoners at Torreón. He is known to have killed numerous volunteers captured during the battle, but officially this is unknown. Those taken on the surrender of the city have been spared, it is declared.

The statement of Carranza is to be taken to Washington by Rev. Henry Allen Tupper, who has already wired a translation of it. The statement will be presented to the senate foreign affairs committee with a view to securing recognition for Carranza at an early date if possible.

CONTEST IS NOT YET ENDED

Villa May Have to Fight Again to Hold Torreón.

Washington, April 7.—A possible explanation of the insistence of the Huerta government that the contest at Torreón is not yet at an end was received here in dispatches from Admiral Fletcher. It is now indicated that another conflict is impending which it will be necessary for Villa to win in order to retain possession of Torreón. Admiral Fletcher reports the federals placing 5,000 fresh troops within striking distance of Torreón. These troops approached from the east and are expected to effect a junction with those of Velasco, who with about 3,000 men made toward Saltillo, whence the reinforcements come upon this evacuation of Torreón last Friday.

It is known that Villa sent considerable force to pursue Velasco and later joined the pursuing force in person. The admiral's information is that General Moore left San Pedro Colonias, a town about twenty-five miles east of Torreón, for the latter city with 4,000 federal and provisions for thirty days. He is now said to be in the vicinity of Torreón. His arrival near Torreón is reported by Admiral Fletcher to have been simultaneous with the arrival of General Maas with 1,700 federal at San Pedro. Seven trainloads of federal also are reported enroute to San Pedro.

If these reports are correct the federals now have near Torreón a total of more than 9,000 men, with more on the way from the east.

Carothers Must Get Out.

Washington, April 7.—Notice of the revocation of the consular exequatur of George C. Carothers, the state department agent with Villa, has been received at the state department from Charge O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City. This action will bring no response from Washington.

No Death of Office Seekers.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 7.—One hundred and ninety-two office seekers have filed notice of their candidacy for nomination on party tickets for various offices in Vigo county, and indications are that fully that many more will have filed notices of candidacy before the time limit has expired.

MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS

President of the National W. C. T. U. Dead at Portland.

MRS. STEVENS HEAD OF THE W. C. T. U. IS DEAD

Her Last Words Applauded Navy Prohibition Order.

Portland, Me., April 7.—Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, is dead here. She had been ill for several weeks with kidney trouble.

Mrs. Stevens, who was born in Dover, Me., seventy years ago, continued to the last the temperance work to which she had devoted most of her life. Her mind remained clear and late last week she was able to dictate correspondence in connection with the duties of her office, which she had held since 1898.

Mrs. Stevens was informed a few hours before her death of Secretary Daniels's order banning alcoholic liquors from the navy.

"It is splendid," she exclaimed. "It is another step forward toward national prohibition for which we are so earnestly striving."

Her last words to those outside her home were: "Give my love to all white ribbon friends in the state, the nation and the world."

With her when the end came were her husband, Michael Stevens, her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude S. Leavitt of this city, and Miss Anna Gordon of Evanston, Ill., vice president of the National W. C. T. U.

Double Murderer Sentenced For Life.

Evansville, Ind., April 7.—Homer Groggins, colored, thirty-four years old, who two weeks ago battered down a door in their home to kill Jack Williams, colored paralytic, and his wife, with an ax, in circuit court pleaded guilty to a charge of murder in the first degree and was given a life term in the penitentiary.

Promptly Took Another Wife.

London, April 7.—The president of the divorce court yesterday made absolute the divorce decree nisi of Mrs. George Cornwallis-West, formerly Lady Randolph Churchill, and before that Jennie Jerome of New York, and within a few hours her former husband married Mrs. Pat Campbell, the actress.

The Contest Narrowing Down.

Sullivan, Ind., April 7.—Friends of Representative Cullop of Vincennes and Charles D. Hunt of Sullivan are closing a hard fight for the Democratic congressional nomination in the Second district, which will be settled by primary tomorrow.

MODERNIZATION OF JERUSALEM

Walls and Towers of the Holy City to Be Pulled Down.

ELECTRIC CARS TO CALVARY

Four Tramway Routes From the Jaffa Gate, One of Which Will Run to Bethlehem, Past Sacred Wells and Tombs—First Rails Will Be Laid in April—Motor Buses For Syria.

What will amount to a revolutionary change in the Holy City is involved in the plan, soon to be carried out, to provide Jerusalem with a modern electric street car service and with electric light. The city is also to have a much needed adequate water supply.

In order to effect these improvements the engineers have come to the conclusion that it is necessary to pull down the picturesque ancient walls and massive towers of the city.

The rapidity with which Jerusalem is extending through the return of the Jews in great numbers to the home of their ancestors has rendered these improvements necessary. To the north and west of the old city there have sprung up within the last ten years, says a correspondent of the London Daily Express, large Jewish colonies, populous residential sections, as well as convents, hospitals, institutions, schools and other buildings, with the result that today there is a greater Jerusalem without the walls than within.

Tramcars Past Sacred Spots.

Four separate tramway routes are to be laid down. They will all start from the Jaffa gate, the principal entrance into the city, and run outside the city walls through the newer parts of Jerusalem. The first, which will have a length of about two miles, will give easy access to what may be termed the "business quarter" of the Holy City. The second, of similar length, will link up the large Jewish colonies to the north with the city's principal entrance. The third will encircle the old city, embracing many of its most historic sites, such as Calvary, believed by many scholars to be the scene of the crucifixion, the tomb of the kings, the Mount of Olives and the valley of Jehoshaphat.

The fourth line will run from the Jaffa gate to Bethlehem, about six miles away, traversing what is perhaps the most sacred thoroughfare in the world. It teems with holy places—sacred wells, tombs and convents.

The work of laying the rails is to begin in April, and, according to the terms of the concession, the syndicate has power to extend the lines in any direction for a distance of some twenty-five miles.

The city walls, which have a circumference of about three miles and rise in places to a height of thirty-eight and a half feet, are now being offered by the government for sale as building material. It is expected, however, that efforts will be made to save isolated sections, more particularly the massive towers. Indeed, influential citizens of Jerusalem have formed a society and are approaching the government with a view to preserving David's tower, which they propose to convert into a museum.

Reservoirs to End Water Shortage.

Of late years Jerusalem has suffered greatly from the want of fresh water. With the exception of a small quantity brought into the city from the ancient pools of Siloam, near Bethlehem, by means of a pipe which runs along the old aqueduct, the Holy City is entirely dependent for its water upon the rainfall. Now reservoirs are to be built in the upper part of the valley of the brook Cherith, at the springs of Ain Farish and Ain Fouwar, where the water will be stored and brought into the city as required.

"That Jerusalem is gradually being westernized is evident," says the correspondent of the Express. "A few months ago a water cart was brought out from England to water the roads, which had previously been sprinkled from skins. Then it was only a year ago that the Holy City was equipped with an efficient telephone service, while now its police are to have bicycles. Then, not only in Jerusalem, but all over the country, modern methods are being brought into vogue. On the rich plains of Sharon, lying between Jaffa and Jerusalem, one may detect modern harvesting and reaping machines operated by motors.

"This is a vast improvement on the old fashioned method of reaping by hand and thrashing floors by oxen."

Damascus, where Paul sojourned after his conversion, and perhaps the very road on which "suddenly there shone round about him a light from heaven," is soon to witness the coming of a British motor omnibus as part of a plan for a motor service between Bagdad and Beirut, a distance of over 500 miles.

Derides the "Poison Needle."

The "poison needle" theory is given the quietus by the Journal of the American Medical Association. "It can be said very positively," says the publication, "that there is no drug known to scientific men which could be administered in the manner or which would produce the effect described in recent newspaper reports."

UNDERWOOD WINS IN CONTEST FOR SENATE

Hobson Defeated By About 20,000 Majority.

Birmingham, Ala., April 7.—While the count of votes in the Democratic primaries held in Alabama yesterday, the nomination being equivalent to election, is progressing slowly because of the length of the ballots, enough is known to assure the election of Congressman Oscar W. Underwood for the long term United States senatorship over Congressman Hobson by at least 20,000 majority. For the term from now until next March there is doubt as to the victory between Frank S. White of Birmingham and Ray Rush-ton of Montgomery.

Congressman Taylor, in the First district, is defeated by Oscar L. Gray. W. B. Oliver of Tuscaloosa is the winner over William B. Bankhead of Jasper in the Sixth district, Hobson's district, while George Huddleston of Birmingham is leading the three other candidates in the Ninth, Underwood's district.

Underwood made a brief visit to voting places in Greater Birmingham yesterday and was given an ovation at each place. He was given a position in the long line at his home box, but did not vote for himself or for Mr. Hobson.

The gubernatorial contest is close between former Governor B. B. Comer and Commissioner of Agriculture Reuben F. Kolb, with Charles Henderson, state railroad commissioner, and Lieutenant Deez in the race.

STATE BOARD ORGANIZED

Secretary of State Ellingham Heads Indiana Tax Commissioners.

Indianapolis, April 7.—The state board of tax commissioners, which has begun a fifty-day session at its office in the statehouse, organized with Secretary of State L. G. Ellingham as chairman and Myron D. King, deputy auditor of state, as secretary. The commissioners are Eben H. Wolcott, James A. Houck and Dan M. Link, with the secretary of state and auditor of state as ex-officio members of the board.

Big Estate Transferred.

London, April 7.—Another great land deal was consummated in London yesterday afternoon when documents were signed transferring the whole of Lord Howard de Walden's Regent Park estate to S. P. Derbyshire for more than $2,500,000.

The Southern Cross Still Missing.

St. Johns, N. F., April 7.—The steamship Kyle, which is searching for the missing sailing steamer Southern Cross, has been so far unsuccessful in finding any trace of the missing vessel.

Nine men were killed at Memphis when they were caught in a gas explosion in a caisson of the new bridge under construction across the Mississippi river.

MAN MAY LEARN TO LIVE ON GRASS

New Methods of Preparing Plants For Food.

NATURE IMPROVED UPON.

Experiments Show Scientific Preparations of Beans, Spinach, Carrots and Cabbage Are Nourishing and Obviate Intestinal Disorders—Way Paved For Vegetable Innovations.

The Journal of the American Medical Association, commenting on the availability of nutrients from plant sources, says it has long been believed that it may be possible to utilize green vegetables so as to make them more available for digestion and assimilation by man. Some experiments in this direction have been carried on in Germany. The outcome may pave the way for useful innovations in the use of vegetable foods.

It has been found that bean powder fed to man in the form of a purée contains far more nourishment than string beans served in the usual form. Spinach, carrots and cabbage similarly prepared were enjoyed with singular freedom from the troublesome intestinal symptoms which so often follow their use. The usefulness of these plant products appears to have been augmented by their preliminary treatment. A group of vegetable products has thus been converted into a source of nutrition.

"The efficiency here recorded," says the writer, "is rendered the more striking by the report from the Altona clinic that ten ounces a day of vegetable powder, equivalent to six pounds of fresh plant, may easily be assimilated—amount which in the natural state could not be tolerated. Possibly by suitable preparation such plant products as grasses, which have hitherto been excluded from the dietary of man, may yet be used as direct sources of energy in human nutrition.

Dependence Upon Plants.

"Without discussing the advantages and disadvantages of the use of foods of animal and vegetable origin, respectively, we are found to admit that man and animal alike are dependent on plants for nutrition. A recent writer has said that man is a parasite living on the plant kingdom. The final source of human energy is found in plants. In so far as mankind obtains energy by consuming the flesh of the domestic animals, only a fraction of the supply taken by the latter in the plant products can ever reach the sphere of usefulness to man.

"The animals which furnish food to man are expensive converters of the energy of plants into a form directly available for his uses. Only a very small residue of the energy intake of such animals is left in the tissues which they furnish as food to man. The great bulk of what has been consumed has become lost in the processes of animal life during the long periods of growth and maintenance before the animal food products can be marketed. To appreciate this one need only consider the enormous amounts of vegetable food necessary to produce the flesh of cattle for human consumption. A cow eats a liberal plant ration daily during several years before she is ready for the market.

"It is evident that it would be an advantage if man could utilize more directly the energy which he now secures only after it has been converted by animals into the forms that suit his preferences.

Products Science Has Made Edible.

"Hitherto the contributions of the plant world to the human dietary have consisted of the parts of plants which serve as storage depots—as reserve supplies for subsequent growth. Seeds, roots, tubers and fruits represent the chief types of plant products which find their way into the ration of mankind. These are by no means all well adapted for food, but the progress of science and the industries and the ingenuity of the domestic arts have little by little so improved the form in which such materials as cereals, nuts, etc., are presented for human consumption that their utilization has become greatly enhanced.

"Processes for grinding, cooking and baking are not natural operations. They have been evolved by the genius of man so that he might readily take direct advantage of the energy which nature has stored up. The indigestibility of 'raw' starch, as in the potato, is overcome by cooking. The resistance of grains to digestion is minimized by grinding and cooking. The struggle to wrest energy from plant products has been a long one.

"There are other plants which man has used freely, but which mankind has not yet employed. The green parts of plants, rich in food material, contain so much cellulose that they can be utilized only to a small degree and with enormous waste. We may soften them by cooking and by mastication without liberating their foodstuffs to any extent."

New Depopulation Remedy.

Captain Maife, the bachelor founder of the Large Family league of Paris, proposes that the Legion of Honor should be awarded to women "who have given freely hostages to fortune and defenders to their country"—in other words, to mothers of exceptionally large families.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y., Editor of the New York State Grange Review

CONNECTICUT GRANGE.

State Master J. A. Sherwood Re-elected—Business Transacted.

The twenty-ninth annual session of the Connecticut state grange was held in Hartford from Jan. 13 to 15, with large attendance. State Master J. A. Sherwood reported some progress in grange work, although but two new granges have been organized the past year. There had been considerable additions to the granges already organized. He said in his opening address that the grange should have a distinct mission in every community and should exert such an influence that it would be recognized as a necessity. The cash receipts for the year, including balance on hand Jan. 14, 1913, were $12,653.12. The expenses were $6,573.33. Invested funds amount to $10,266.25.

Resolutions of various kinds were presented and considered, and the most important of those adopted may be summarized as follows: Favoring the teaching of agriculture in the public schools, and to that end a committee was recommended to prepare an outline course in agriculture. The grange also urged that the foundations of bookkeeping be taught in the common and the high schools and that such instruction be made compulsory. It also favored the compulsory teaching of certain essential principles of morality in these schools. Another resolution established a sort of educational fund for the use of needy young members of the Order in securing an education at the State Agricultural college. Each grange is to set apart a sum equal to 4 cents for each member each year for this fund. The grange voted unanimously against the free seed distribution of congress. The administration of Postmaster General Burleson was indorsed with special reference to the parcel post law.

The new workmen's compensation law came in for severe scoring, inasmuch as it affects the farmer as an employer. It was explained by an authority that the farmer could get around it by serving certain papers, but the grange went on record as in opposition to it and suggested that it be radically amended. It was said to be the intention to exclude from the provisions of the act all who did not employ five or more. As a result of the agitation over the compensation law the following resolution relative to farmers' insurance was adopted: "That the minimum rate of $9.00 to the small farmer is an unfair discrimination and that the executive committee be instructed to confer with the companies writing liability insurance and endeavor to secure a fair rate for the small farmer."

Addresses were given during the session by J. H. Hale, Past Master George S. Ladd of Massachusetts and by Mrs. Ladd, lecturer of the Massachusetts state grange; Rev. F. A. Sumner of Milford, George B. Chandler of Rocky Hill and others. The officers of the grange were mostly re-elected.

The matter of selecting a place for the next annual meeting was referred to the executive committee after considerable discussion. It will go either to Waterbury or New Haven.

Some Grange Notes.

New Jersey grangers are beginning early to arrange for their annual Gloucester county grange picnic which as usual will cover three days, Aug. 12 to 14. State Master Gaunt heads the committee of arrangements, with whom are associated several others. It is said that the exhibits of farm machinery and of poultry will be largely increased this year.

Pennsylvania state grange is to take a referendum vote next June on the question of woman suffrage in order to ascertain the exact sentiment, particularly of the women of the grange. The women's vote and the men's will be kept separate. The legislative committee of the Pennsylvania state grange has called for the appointment of a committee to inquire into state expenditures. It also demands greater powers for townships of the second class in the construction and maintenance of roads. The committee went on record as approving an annual state appropriation of $7,000,000 for good roads. It further demands that property be assessed at its actual value for purposes of taxation.

Several granges and schools in Jefferson county, N. Y., have arranged with the College of Forestry for a series of lectures by Professor John W. Stephens on various phases of the forestry question. It is believed that if the people become better acquainted with the real situation in the state pertaining to our forests and our idle lands they will be more active in caring for what forests they now have on their farms and will endeavor to turn deforested tracts into productive areas. New York sends out of the state every year over $20,000,000 for wood to be used in its many industries.

New Granges For Last Quarter.

The number of granges organized and reorganized from Oct. 1, 1913, to Dec. 31, 1913, both inclusive, is as follows: Organized—California, 2; Colorado, 5; Idaho, 1; Indiana, 4; Iowa, 1; Kansas, 5; Massachusetts, 9; Michigan, 3; Missouri, 4; Montana, 1; Nebraska, 9; North Dakota, 12; New York, 10; Ohio, 6; Oregon, 4; Pennsylvania, 3; South Dakota, 1; Washington, 8. Total, 91. Reorganized—Massachusetts, 1; Pennsylvania, 2; Washington, 3. Total, 6.

CHAPTER XXII.

Renunciation.

On the third day after the singular trial of Hetty Castleton in Sara's library, young Mrs. Wrاندall's motor drew up in front of a lofty office building in lower Broadway; its owner stepped down from the limousine and entered the building. A few moments later she walked briskly into the splendid offices of Wrاندall & Co., private bankers and steamship-owners. The clerks in the outer offices stared for a moment in significant surprise, and then bowed respectfully to the beautiful silent partner in the great concern.

It was the first time she had been seen in the offices since the tragic event that had served to make her a member of the firm. A boy at the information desk, somewhat impressed by her beauty and the trim elegance of her long black broad-tail coat, to say nothing of the dark eyes that shone through the narrow veil, forgot the dignity of his office and went so far as to politely ask her who she wanted to see and "what name, please."

The senior clerk rushed forward and transcribed the new boy with a glare.

"A new boy, Mrs. Wrاندall," he made haste to explain. To the new boy's surprise, the visitor was conducted with much bowing and scraping into the private offices, where no one ventured except by special edict of the powers.

"Who was it?" he asked, in some awe, of a veteran stenographer who came up and sneered at him.

"Mrs. Challis Wrاندall, you little simpleton," said she, and for once he failed to snap back.

It is of record that for nearly two whole days, he was polite to every visitor who approached him—and was generally worth his salt.

Sara found herself in the close little room that once had been her husband's, but was now scrupulously held in reserve for her own use. Rather a waste of space, she felt as she looked about the office. The clerk dusted an easy chair and threw open the long unused desk near the window.

"We are very glad to see you here, madam," he said. "This room hasn't "What's this?" He Demanded, Sharply, been used much, as you may observe. Is there anything I can do for you?"

She continued her critical survey of the room. Nothing had been changed since the days when she used to visit her husband here on occasions of rare social importance; such as calling to take him out to luncheon, or to see that he got safely home on rainy afternoons. The big picture of a steamship still hung on the wall across the room. Her own photograph, in a silver frame stood in one of the recesses of the desk. She observed that there was a clean white blotter there, too; but the ink wells appeared to be empty. If she was to judge by the look of chagrin on the clerk's face as he inspected them. Photographs of polo scenes in which Wrاندall was a prominent figure, hung about the walls, with two or three pictures of his favorite ponies, and one of a ragged gipsy girl with wonderful eyes, carrying a monkey in a crude wooden cage strapped to her back. On closer observation one would have recognized Sara's peculiarly gipsy-like features in the face of the girl, and then one would have noticed the caption written in red ink at the bottom of the photograph: "The Trumbell's Fancy Dress Ball, January 10, '07. Sara as Gipsy Mab."

With a start, Sara came out of her painful reverie. She passed her hand over her eyes, and seemed thereby to put the polite senior clerk back into the picture once more.

"No, thank you. Is Mr. Redmond Wrاندall down this afternoon?"

"He came in not ten minutes ago. Mr. Leslie Wrاندall is also here.

Shall I tell Mr. Wrاندall you wish to see him?"

"You may tell him that I am here, if you please," she said.

"I am very sorry about the ink wells, madam," murmured the clerk. "We—we were not expecting—" "Pray don't let it disturb you, Mr. Bancroft. I shall not use them to-day."

"They will be properly filled by to-morrow."

"Thank you."

He disappeared. She relaxed in the familiar, comfortable old leather-cushioned chair, and closed her eyes. There was a sharp little line between them, but it was hidden by the veil.

The door opened slowly and Redmond Wrاندall came into the room. She arose at once.

"This is—er—an unexpected pleasure, Sara," he said perplexed and ill-at-ease. He stopped just inside the door he had been careful to close behind him, and did not offer her his hand.

"I came down to attend to some business, Mr. Wrاندall," she said.

"Business?" he repeated, staring.

She took note of the tired, haggard look in his eyes, and the tightly compressed lips.

"I intend to dispose of my entire interest in Wrاندall & Co.," she announced calmly.

He took a step forward, plainly startled by the declaration.

"What's this?" he demanded sharply.

"We may as well speak plainly, Mr. Wrاندall," she said. "You do not care to have me remain a member of the firm, nor do I blame you for feeling as you do about it. A year ago you offered to buy me out—or off, as I took it to be at the time. I had reasons then for not selling out to you. Today I am ready either to buy or to sell."

"You—you amaze me," he exclaimed.

"Does you offer of last December still stand?"

"I—I think we would better have Leslie in, Sara. This is most unexpected. I don't quite feel up to—"

"Have Leslie in by all means," she said, resuming her seat.

He hesitated a moment, opened his lips as if to speak, and then abruptly left the room.

Sara smiled.

Many minutes passed before the two Wrاندalls put in an appearance. She understood the delay. They were telephoning to certain legal advisers.

"What's this I hear, Sara?" demanded Leslie, extending his hand after a second's hesitation.

She shook hands with him, not listlessly but with the vigor born of nervousness.

"I don't know what you've heard," she said pointedly.

His slim fingers went searching for the end of his moustache.

"Why—why, about selling out to us," he stammered.

"I am willing to retire from the firm of Wrاندall & Co.," she said.

"Father says the business is as good as it was a year ago, but I don't agree with him," said the son, trying to look lugubrious.

"Then you don't care to repeat your original proposition?"

"Well, the way business has been falling off—"

"Perhaps you would prefer to sell out to me," she remarked quietly.

"Not at all!" he said quickly, with a surprised glance at his father. "We couldn't think of letting the business pass out of the Wrاندall name."

"You forget that my name is Wrاندall," she rejoined. "There would be no occasion to change the firm's name; merely its membership."

"Our original offer stands," said the senior Wrاندall stiffly. "We prefer to buy."

"And I to sell. Mr. Carroll will meet you tomorrow, gentlemen. He will represent me as usual. Our business as well as social relations are about to end, I suppose. My only regret is that I cannot further accommodate you by changing my name. Still you may live in hope that time may work even that wonder for you."

She arose. The two men regarded her in an aggrieved way for a moment.

"I have no real feeling of hostility toward you, Sara," said Leslie nervously, "in spite of all that you said the other night."

"I am afraid you don't mean that, deep down in your heart, Leslie," she said, with a queer little smile.

"But I do," he protested. "Hang it all, we—we live in a glass house ourselves, Sara. I dare say, in a way, I was quite as unpleasant as the rest of the family. You see, we just can't help being knobs. It's in us, that's all there is to it."

Mr. Wrاندall looked up from the floor, his gaze having dropped at the first outburst from his son's lips.

"We—we prefer to be friendly, Sara, if you will allow us—"

She laughed and the old gentleman stopped in the middle of his sentence.

"We can't be friends, Mr. Wrاندall," she said, suddenly serious. "The pretence would be a mockery. We are all better off if we allow our paths, our interests to diverge today."

"Perhaps you are right," said he, compressing his lips.

"I believe that Vivian and I could—but no! I won't go so far as to say that either. There is something genuine about her. Strange to say, I have never disliked her."

"If you had made the slightest effort to like us, no doubt we could have—"

"My dear Mr. Wrاندall," she interrupted quickly, "I credit you with the desire to be fair and just to me. You have tried to like me. You have even deceived yourself at times. I—but why these gentle recriminations? We merely prolong an unfortunate contest between antagonistic natures, with no hope of genuine peace being established. I do not regret that I am your daughter-in-law, nor do I believe that you would regret it if I had not been the daughter of Sebastian Gooch."

"Your father was as little impressed with my son as I was with his daughter," said Redmond Wrاندall drily. "I am forced to confess that he was the better judge. We had the better of the bargain."

"I believe you mean it, Mr. Wrاندall," she said, a note of gratitude in her voice. "Good-bye. Mr. Carroll will see you tomorrow." She glanced quickly about the room. "I shall send for—certain articles that are no longer required in conducting the business of Wrاندall & Co."

With a quaint little smile, she indicated the two photographs of herself.

"By Jove, Sara," burst out Leslie abruptly. "I wish you'd let me have that Gipsy Mab picture. I've always been dotty over it, don't you know. Rippling study."

Her lip curled slightly.

"As a matter of fact," he explained conclusively, "Chal often said he'd leave it to me when he died. In a joking way, of course, but I'm sure he meant it."

"You may have it, Leslie," she said slowly. It is doubtful if he correctly interpreted the movement of her head as she uttered the words.

"Thanks," said he. "I'll hang it in my den, if you don't object."

"We shall expect Mr. Carroll tomorrow, Sara," said his father, with an air of finality. "Good-bye. May I ask what plans you are making for the winter?"

"They are very indefinite."

"I say, Sara, why don't you get married?" asked Leslie, surveying the Gipsy Mab photograph with undisguised admiration as he held it at arm's length. "Rippling!" This to the picture.

She paused near the door to stare at him for a moment, unutterable scorn in her eyes.

"I've had a notion you were pretty keen about Brandy Booth," he went on amiably.

She caught her breath. There was an instant's hesitation on her part before she replied.

"You have never been very smart at making love guesses, Leslie," she said. "It's a trick you haven't acquired."

He laughed uncomfortably. "Neat stroke, that."

Following her into the corridor outside the offices, he pushed the elevator bell for her.

"I meant what I said, Sara," he remarked, somewhat doggedly. "You ought to get married. Chal didn't leave much for you to cherish. There's no reason why you should go on like this, living alone and all that sort of thing. You're young and beautiful and—"

"Oh, thank you, Leslie," she cried out sharply.

"You see, it's going to be this way: Hetty will probably marry Booth. That's on dit, I take it. You're depending on her for companionship. Well, she'll quit you cold after she's married. She will—"

She interrupted him peremptorily.

"If Challis did nothing else for me, Leslie, he at least gave me you to cherish. Once more, good-bye."

The elevator stopped for her. He strolled back to his office with a puzzled frown on his face. She certainly was inexplicable!

The angry red faded from her cheeks as she sped homeward in the automobile. Her thoughts were no longer of Leslie but of another. She sighed and closed her eyes, and her cheeks were pale.

Workmen from a picture dealer's establishment were engaged in hanging a full length portrait in the long living-room of her apartment when she reached home. She had sent to the country for Booth's picture of Hetty, and was having it hung in a conspicuous place.

Passing the open library door, Sara paused for an instant to peer within. Then she went on down the hall to her own sitting-room. The canary was singing glibly in his cage by the window-side.

She threw aside her furs, and, without removing her hat, passed into the bed-chamber at the left of the cozy little boudoir. This was Hetty's room. Her own was directly opposite. On the girl's dressing-table, leaning against the broad, low mirror, stood the unframed photograph of a man. With a furtive glance over her shoulder, Sara crossed to the table and took up the picture in her gloved hand. For a long time she stood there gazing into the frank, good-looking face of Brandon Booth. She breathed faster; her hand shook; her eyes were strained as if by an inward suggestion of pain.

She shook her head slowly, as if in final renunciation of a secret hope or the banishment of an unwelcome desire, and resolutely replaced the photograph. Her lips were almost white as she turned away and re-entered the room beyond.

"He belongs to her," she said, unconsciously speaking aloud; "and he is like all men. She must not be unhappy."

Presently she entered the library. She had exchanged her tailor-suit for a dainty house-gown. Hetty was still seated in the big lounging chair, before the snapping fire, apparently not having moved since she looked in on passing a quarter of an hour before. One of the girl's legs was curled up under her, the other swung loose; an elbow rested on the arm of the chair, and her cheek was in her hand.

Coming softly up from behind, Sara leaned over the back of the chair and put her hands under her friend's chin, tenderly, lovingly. Hetty started and shivered.

"Oh, Sara, how cold your hands are!"

She grasped them in her own and fondly stroked them, as if to restore warmth to the long, slim fingers which gave the lie to Mrs. Coburn's declarations.

"I've been thinking all morning of what you and Brandon proposed to me last night," said Sara, looking straight over the girl's head, the dark, languorous, mysterious glow filling her eyes. "It is good of you both to want me, but—"

"Now don't say 'but,' Sara," cried Hetty. "We mean it, and you must let us have our way."

"It would be splendid to be near you all the time, dear; it would be wonderful to live with you as you so generously propose, but I cannot do it. I must decline."

"And may I ask why you decline to live with me?" demanded Hetty resentfully.

"Because I love you so dearly," said Sara.

NEW CURRENCY SYSTEM TO BE IN OPERATION SHORTLY

which banks must apply for subscription for stock in the respective reserve banks. Thirty days are allowed in which to make the first payment of the required 6 per cent. of their capital and surplus.

As soon as banks in any one district have subscribed the $4,000,000 capital necessary for a reserve bank the succeeding steps of organization will be promptly taken. The reserve bank will be given a charter and the members will exercise their right to elect six of the nine directors of each.

President Wilson probably will name the five members of the Federal reserve board he is entitled to appoint by the time charters have been granted.

Then the administration is expected to do its utmost to push the organization of the system along. The reserve board will name three directors of each reserve bank, and with this task performed the banks will be ready to operate.

Officials here were interested today in what limitations may be placed upon Clearing House Associations through the new system. The reserve board will have much power over such associations, but no one in authority cared today to predict how far it might go toward curtailing their activities.

The board, however, is not expected to interfere with the local functions of any such associations, but its action may take the line of lessening their grip, particularly in the larger cities.

Secretary McAdoo has announced the results of the direct loans to banks at crop-moving time last fall. Treasury funds were deposited in 193 banks in sixty-two cities in twenty-eight states to the amount of $37,286,000. The last of the loans were repaid by April 1, the limit set by the treasury.

The government received an interest at 2 per cent. a total of $260,000, representing a clear profit. Mr. McAdoo said the amount required by banks had been much less than he expected and attributed this fact to the restoration of confidence when it became known that the treasury was ready to render such assistance.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

John Gillespie was admitted to the Schneek hospital this morning for an operation.

Miss Katherine Reinhart, who has been confined to her home with the grip for several days, is improving.

A novel and attractive display case has been built by Platter & Co. at their studio on West Second street. It is constructed near the sidewalk and will be used for displaying pictures, kodaks and supplies. The foundation is made of concrete blocks.

A new pool table and a new billiard table have been installed at the I. O. O. F. club rooms. These rooms have been conveniently and comfortably furnished with chairs and reading tables and are quite popular with the members of that order. The club was organized several months ago and many new furnishings have been purchased since that time.

During the last few months a number of eggs of unusual shapes have been exhibited at this office and one of the strangest seen was brought here Monday afternoon. It was laid by a hen owned by Samuel Tormoehlen, South Poplar street, and resembles a gourd. One end of the egg is much larger than the other and is also much heavier.

The carcass of a freak pig with one head and a double body was brought to this city Monday afternoon by J. U. Montgomery, a rural mail carrier, from the Hanly farm, east of the city. The farm is tenanted by Jesse Pugh. The pig had eight legs although the two fore legs on either side of the body were grown together.

The Cooperative Building and Loan Association opened its new series of stock with more than three hundred shares taken. This indicates that the series will grow to more than four hundred shares before it closes as additional stock is being taken today and will be taken for several days yet. This is the largest series opened for several years.
